Major Headlines

Oil prices choppy as Middle East exports recover, G7 taps emergency stocks

Oil prices were choppy on Monday as rising crude exports from the Middle East and a planned release of emergency oil stocks by Group of Seven nations eased some immediate supply concerns, although geopolitical tensions remained heightened. As of 05:19 ET (09:19 GMT), Brent crude futures expiring in December rose 0.3% to $102.52 per barrel, while West Texas Intermediate (WTI) crude futures for Nov slipped 0.4% to $90.71 per barrel.

Gold retains key reserve status despite surging bond yields, central bankers say

Gold remains a strategic reserve asset as concerns over rising government debt and geopolitical instability boost its appeal as a haven from risk, two central bankers said on Monday, even after this year's surge in bond yields. Gold prices typically retreat as yields rise, boosting the opportunity cost of holding non-interest bearing assets.

U.S. stock futures subdued as traders weigh elevated yields, hopes for Fed pause

U.S. stock futures pointed lower on Monday, indicating a cautious start to the trading week, as investors kept tabs on bond market jitters and the outlook for Federal Reserve interest rates. By 06:08 ET (10:08 GMT), the Dow futures contract had fallen by 92 points, or 0.2%, S&P 500 futures had dropped by 13 points, or 0.2%, and Nasdaq 100 futures had dipped by 69 points, or 0.2%.

USD/JPY Price Forecast: Consolidates below 158.00 as bullish bias persists

The USD/JPY pair struggles to capitalize on Friday's bounce from sub-157.00 levels, touched in reaction to the weak US Nonfarm Payrolls (NFP) report, and seesaws between tepid gains/minor losses through the first half of the European session. Spot prices currently trade just below the 158.00 mark, nearly unchanged for the day amid mixed cues.

EUR/USD Price Forecast: Next move hinges on US NFP data

The Euro (EUR) finds temporary support against the US Dollar (USD) on Friday after a four-day losing streak, in which it hits a fresh yearly low at 1.1215. In Asian trade, EUR/USD is up 0.1% to near 1.1253 due to a marginal correction in the US Dollar.
