Major Headlines

Oil eases but heads for small weekly gain as investors focus on Middle East supply

Oil prices fell on Friday but were heading for weekly gains on uncertainty over Middle East supplies and a larger-than-expected draw from US crude stockpiles, while European diesel margins dropped following the IEA's decision to release more diesel. Brent crude futures were down 78 cents, or 0.74%, at $105.14 a barrel at 0927 GMT, while US West Texas Intermediate crude futures were down 99 cents, or 1%, to $96.98.

Gold inches higher as dollar softens, investors eye Fed rate outlook

Gold prices ticked higher on Friday, bolstered by a softer U.S. dollar, while investors assessed the trajectory of Federal Reserve interest rates. By 05:05 ET (09:05 GMT), spot gold had risen by 0.4% to $4,187.66 an ounce and gold futures had gained 0.9% to $4,208.50 an ounce. The U.S. dollar index, which tracks the greenback against a basket of global currencies, was last down by 0.3% at 101.78 and was on track for its first weekly decline in five weeks.

S&P 500 futures inch higher, but on pace for losing week

By 06:54 ET (10:54 GMT), the S&P 500 futures contract had risen by 10 points, or 0.1%. Meanwhile, Nasdaq 100 futures dipped by 50 points, or 0.2%, and Dow futures had climbed by 179 points, or 0.3%. For the week, the S&P and tech-heavy Nasdaq Composite have retreated by almost 1% and more than 2%, respectively. But the blue-chip Dow is on pace for around a 1% increase.

USD/JPY Price Forecast: 157.50 pivotal support holds after Warsh's remarks

The USD/JPY pair fades an Asian session uptick to the 158.15-158.20 region, sliding back below the 158.00 mark following Federal Reserve (Fed) Chair Kevin Warsh's opening remarks at the Annual Meetings of the International Monetary Fund and World Bank Group, in Bangkok. In a conversation with the International Monetary Fund (IMF) Managing Director Kristalina Georgieva, Warsh said that the world has broadly conformed to our expectations since the September FOMC meeting.

EUR/USD Price Forecast: Euro stalls below 1.1240 with Eurozone Inflation data on tap

The Euro (EUR) ticks higher against the US Dollar (USD) on Friday and is on track to its first weekly gain in more than one month, as the recent pullback in US Treasury yields and dovish comments by Federal Reserve officials have undermined speculative demand for the Greenback. The pair, however, has been capped at 1.1240 for the second time over the last two days and pulls back to the 1.1220 area ahead of the release of the final Eurozone inflation data for September.
